

The home page will be this daily page where it displays what your diet and exercise was for the day at the top. The bar on the left will have some information on the day such as graphs of how it compares to the past few days and other information about the total number of calories and such. The box on the bottom will be searchable and return the results of things that you would want to add as either a diet item or an exercise item.

This page is the calendar page so that you can easily see what days you inserted data and also navigate to those days.

On this profile page you will be able to see how close this user is to reaching their goals and some other various stats on them. The profile page will also have a comment section where other users or yourself can leave messages for inspiration or to just talk.

